How can we look back at 2020 without seeing the impacts of the pandemic on individuals, organizations and the accentuation of social justice movements.

In many ways, this pandemic has polarized inequalities, and highlighted and exacerbated precarious issues on the margins such as, extreme poverty and homelessness, suffering of Indigenous communities and mental health disorders of individuals and frontline workers, social cohabitation in urban centers, femicides, the Black Lives Matter movement, and systemic racism.

More than ever, we have found ourselves faced with the tensions and large-scale social issues that define our time. We cannot ignore the multitude of social crises and that the transformations required will have to be profound.

In the midst of a health crisis, Exeko questioned itself about the priorities of its fields of intervention. We questioned ourselves, we listened, we wavered, then we adapted and strove to act in solidarity where the needs were identified. We deployed emergency measures on the frontline, particularly in the field of homelessness support and in support of community organizations. Once again, we would like to acknowledge the incredible efforts made over the past year by actors and organizations in this sector.

This unprecedented crisis also allowed us to validate the relevance of our mission. Our actions have, more than ever, provided support to break isolation, to uplift voices least heard and to forge links between demands for social justice and institutions.

This reflection and the accentuation of social movements made us more concerned, but also pushed us to invest our solidarity, to turn to others, as to ourselves, and to adapt and to build and to deconstruct. We have learned to deepen our analyses and our proposals, have faith in our role and commit to playing it. We strived to hear the voices, to listen to the cries, to unite, to be attentive to the recommendations, to recognize the truths and to take action.

Inclusion and social justice are at the heart of our actions, our personal and collective transformations, our reflections, our successes and our failures, our internal practices, our individualities, our roles and our dedication to stronger social movements.

This year has revealed deep inequalities, yet the field of social justice has been the scene of more open and stronger discussions than in past years. Let’s not forget those who came before us. The struggles in which we participate today have much deeper and deeper roots than we tend to believe. As demanding and violent as this pandemic will have been, we trust that it will also have had the effect of raising awareness and causing changes both in our institutions and more broadly in society. The pandemic has left us confined in many ways, but it has also brought us closer together through alliances and solidarities that give me so much hope. We experienced the crisis and its effects unequally, however, in the face of adversity we found ourselves in a common situation which allowed us to forge links. We wish to emerge from this crisis more sensitive, closer and united. We hope that together we will seize the opportunity to transform society in full collaboration.

In solidarity,

François-Xavier Michaux
Co-founder and Executive-Director
Vision
Together, to build a more inclusive, creative and reflexive society that recognizes and respects the potentials, knowledges and diversities of all, and that provides the tools and conditions necessary for an active and informed participation by everyone.

Approach: Presumption of Equality in Intelligence
Suspend our prejudice and recognize, above all, every person's potential to think, analyze, act, create and be an effective member of society, regardless of their situation or their journey – we assume equality in intelligence.

Theory of Social Transformation
Act on multiple leverage points simultaneously to influence change, from an individual approach to the transformation of systems:

1. Spheres of action
2. Leverage points for social transformation
Act on multiple leverage points simultaneously to influence change, from an individual approach to the transformation of systems: spheres of action for social transformation. Together, to build a more inclusive, creative and reflexive society that recognizes and respects the potentials, knowledges and diversities of all, and that provides the tools and conditions necessary for an active and informed participation by everyone.

Inclusion: redefining social norms together, with individuals at risk or in a situation of exclusion
Capacity building: developing reflective, creative and critical abilities and skills
Citizen participation: as citizens, making our voices heard and taking part in public life
Emancipation: freeing ourselves from intellectual domination and prejudice, and becoming a free thinker
Freedom of expression: exercising our freedom of speech

Deconstructing prejudices: creating opportunities for encounters between the public and those at risk of exclusion, reversing tendencies and sharing a positive image of marginalized individuals
Social acceptance: accepting that those around us have different beliefs, knowledge, cultures and history
Civic engagement: encouraging involvement in collective projects

Acknowledging expertise
mutual enrichment
acceleration of impact: working together and in collaboration to increase its efficiency
Sharing knowledge and wisdom

Participating in studying and defining public policies
amplifying the voices of the most marginalized: enabling everyone’s voices to be heard, particularly those most at risk of exclusion
My tent, whatever I lost, it doesn’t matter. But that space of expression, the sheet and my drawings and those moments of introspection are fundamentals. I can’t live without it... Exeko is pretty much one of the only organizations that harnesses his dimension of being: art truly as an expression of interiority, of uniqueness and of personality.

Anonymous participants in the Mont-Royal metro station, referring to an encounter during an idAction Mobile outing
We propose innovative and collaborative approaches for creating the conditions necessary for inclusion and intellectual emancipation, by employing at once:

- practical approaches of cultural and intellectual mediation, which offer adapted tools that recognize, value and empower differences (of cultures, knowledges, etc.)

- systemic approaches inspired by social innovation and that aim for transformation at both an individual level and at different levels of society (particularly, civil society, organizations and institutions, and governments).

We address several issues, such as:

- intellectual emancipation
- prevention of exclusion (homelessness, crime, suicide, addiction)
- citizen and cultural participation
- inter-recognition
- identity reinforcement
- educational determination
- etc.

Founded in Montreal in 2006, we use intellectual and artistic creativity to work toward an inclusive and emancipatory social transformation.

Our approach recognizes, above all, every person’s potential to think, analyze, act, create and be an effective member of society, despite the situation they’re in or their journey – we assume equality of intelligence.
“Exeko creates social inclusion on a human, organizational and institutional scale.”
Danielle Poulin, Board member
“As much as you can, try to be in different circles, to do activities where you will meet people, people from all kinds of backgrounds. For me, this experience with Exeko, it did me a lot of good, it helped me in my self esteem and I wish more people could experience things like that.”

SJ - PCEIM, about the Inclusive Culture Lab
“A complex set of discreditation phenomenona (alienation, relegation at a subaltern state, disqualification, etc.) of individuals or groups based on the idea that these individuals are not able to think on their own or that their intelligence is weaker and irrelevant.”

Extract from the definition of intellectual marginalization by Maxime Goulet-Langlois, research and knowledge transfer lead, as part of RCIM research (Research Committee on Intellectual Mediation)
"Exeko makes people understand and see that they are worth more than they believe. After that, opening up becomes easier for them."

The pandemic may have delayed you, but it has certainly not stopped you. It has been a year of great challenges, but your desire to continue your mission has allowed you to concentrate your efforts in order to skillfully support those most vulnerable to the crisis.

We are proud to be associated with a youth support partner who has at heart the wellbeing of these too often forgotten communities.

FILING THE CHARTER FOR AN ACCESSIBLE, INCLUSIVE AND EQUITABLE CULTURE

4 years of participatory action research with the Lab Culture Inclusive, fruitful collaboration with 10 cultural institutions and 80 co-researchers from 9 community organizations, the birth of a charter translated into 5 languages complimented by a practical guide. Hundreds of applications to institutions emerged for virtual and face-to-face projects from Nunavik to Montréal with young people, immigrants, people experiencing, or at risk of homelessness, Indigenous communities, neurodivergent individuals and to advance social justice against racism.

A YEAR OF ANALYSIS AND SOCIAL REFLECTION TO KEEP OUR RELEVANCE IN AN ECOSYSTEM MARKED BY PROBLEMS EXACERBATED BY THE CRISIS AND THE GROWTH OF SOCIAL JUSTICE MOVEMENTS

Creation of an internal committee dedicated to analyzing the realities and impacts of a health crisis on populations most at risk of exclusion + a Resonance committee on the board focused on monitoring social issues and analyzing our ecosystem + reflection projects and training courses in our main causes and solidarity + sustainable research on interculturality embodied in our projects, our practices, our internal stance created by our community of practice and mediators.

MOBILIZATION WITH THE INDIGENOUS COMMUNITY OF MONTREAL

Reduced collaboration with partner Indigenous communities in the region due to travel ban / digital divid. • increased mobilization on the territory of Montreal to support the indigenous community experiencing homelessness • solidarity actions in response to Indigenous calls to recognize the truths and engage in the path of reconciliation.

A PANDEMIC THAT CENTERS OUR ENERGIES ON ACTIONS IN URBAN AREAS

Exploration of new boroughs • increased intersectoral collaborations with organizations in Montreal-North (new set of workshops with the CJE Montreal-North) • support for the Open Space project of the CIUSS de Montréal-Nord, projects with Hoodstock + the Bout du monde collective • a weekly presence at Côtes des-neiges (with Baobab Familial + Club Ami as a well as via photography workshops in the street) and at Villeray-Parc-extension in sectors where homelessness is hidden behind great precariousness.
LISTEN TO AND SUPPORT COMMUNITY ACTIONS

Join the Defund the Police coalition for the definition of the SPVM + the League of Rights and Freedoms + the Collectif We Leave No One Behind • respond to requests for sponsorship from the Indigenous Support Workers Project + Singa Quebec + Hoodstock + Bout du monde collective • support community demands + advocates for the defense of rights movements • make resources (human resources, coordination, mobilization) available for two of the city’s hot spots and for Montréal Indigenous Community NETWORK’s Warming Tent • distribute health emergency supplies with idAction Mobile • support the Indigenouse Support Workers Project

QUESTIONING OUR SOLIDARITY ACTIONS TO BECOME TOOLED, EDUCATED AND MOBILIZED ALLIES

Learning:
To improve our understanding of “allyship,” we sought to better understand the struggles and the calls for equity and justice by Indigenous, racialized, immigrant, two-spirit, lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans, queer, intersex, non-binary, asexual • and neurodivergent communities and individuals

Our intentions:
This is only the beginning, we have blind spots, we come up against our own unconscious biases and the history of colonialism that we perpetuate in our own practices. However, we recognize the essential path of decolonization that must be taken. Through this work, there’s rich potential to create increasingly inclusive and safer spaces to make informed choices about our actions and to express ourselves more clearly on the struggles that we undertake

AT A GLANCE

OVER 40 hybrid and intersectoral ARTISTIC AND REFLEXIVE PROJECTS with more than 1000 participants at risk or experiencing exclusion and 115 partners from the community or public sectors of health, culture, research and environment

AMPLIFYING VOICES

A video and podcasts resulting from improbable dialogues between people experiencing homelessness + new immigrants in Québec • Autism awareness day testimony • blog + public reading recounting of Exquisite Stories, the recounting of collective stories • 6 blog articles written by participants during the Maison des Amis workshops • collective work born in Boulot Vers • Posters for international women’s rights day • a four-handed song on Notre-Dame camp • camp video + photo album + compilation of quotes for the project at La Maisonnée • audiovisual logbook created by the young people of the CJE Montreal-North • protest against racism + slogans mobilizing residents of Val d’or • hand-woven artwork telling the stories shared by Milton Parc community members
OUR ACTIVITIES
Spaces for experimentation and inclusive labs research, labs seek to mobilize around issues of exclusion and to test social transformation strategies in democratic, cultural and learning environments.

Creating egalitarian and entertaining spaces for reflection which employ creativity as a tool for empowerment and social analysis, citizen education and citizen participation.

Juggling action research, interactive research, creation research & partnership research to mobilize practical and theoretical knowledge and to address the inherent complexity of social exclusion.

Support initiatives to mobilize for social justice, share our resources, pool our skills and meet the needs of our partners and social circles.
SOCIAL INNOVATION LABS

SPOTLIGHT ON THE INCLUSIVE CULTURE LAB

The 4th year of the Inclusive Culture Lab ended with the filing and official launch of the Charter for an accessible, inclusive and equitable culture. It was the culmination of four years of research-action and multi-partnership collaboration between co-researchers of institutions and organizations in the social and community sectors.

THE CODESIGN AND IMPLEMENTATION PHASE OF THE INCLUSIVE CULTURE LAB:

mapping project in targeted boroughs in Montréal, participatory democracy pilot projects including a meeting and discussion project between Manon Massé, Member of Parliament for Sainte-Marie–Saint-Jacques, and a group of young people from Go Jeunesse + with an ecosystem of partners, we created a lab dedicated to issues of equity, accessibility and inclusion for young people citizen participation in an intercultural context.

A program in close collaboration with community stakeholders made for Indigenous youth who, through artistic and reflective workshops, are guided in the exploration, appropriation, reinterpretation of cultural elements and traditional knowledge. Cultural and language exist as common threads to address identity issues, to act in prevention, to promote leadership and to reflect on the tension between tradition and contemporary with young Indigenous people.

In recent years, Trickster has also become a vehicle for the transfer of practice, training and support for the interveners and partners with whom we work. The program meets training needs related to mobilization, citizen participation, facilitation and community development, by anchoring learning in the center of the project.

“It is impossible to discuss Indigenous projects without talking about the tragedies that the Indigenous communities have been living through. Being partnered with these communities reminds us constantly that we have a duty to self-educate ourselves and that we must navigate our collaborations while staying informed about what is going on. An initiative created as a result of close collaborations with ESUMA, Kativik Regional Government and the community of Kangiqsualujjuaq. Initially developed in the Inuit community of Kangiqsualujjuaq as a pilot project in 2016, ENCEP has become a program that supports the creation and consolidation of local hubs in Nunavik communities.

Young professionals and community organizations come together to find common ground for collaboration with the objective of fostering learning, motivation, personal and professional development as well as supporting collective leadership and community engagement.

Service workers share and pool their knowledge, experiences and efforts to create activities and educational projects with and for youth.

I WAS COMPLETELY ALONE TODAY, THANKS FOR TALKING TO ME.
Anonymous
A critical literacy program and microlibrary network. A free-library promoting access to knowledge and culture by using books or writing as modalities for literary and poetic encounters.

“YOUR WRITING WORKSHOPS WERE AN OPPORTUNITY FOR MEETING OUTSIDE OF OUR REALITIES. I WENT THERE AND EVEN INVITED THE NEIGHBOURHOOD TO THE CAMPSITE.”

Jacques Brochu, temporary resident of the Notre-Dame campsite
A writing project in collaboration with several authors that allows bonding and encouraging the expression of multiple voices.

The project consists of breaking down the writing process in multiple steps entrusted to different groups.

First, the elements of the story (background, atmosphere, characters...) are collected, which are then given as a sort of package to mature or senior authors who begin writing stories. Each author then receives a story to continue.

The creation of writing kits composed by Marie-Paule Grimaldi addressing the digital divide and the difficult participation at the online workshops for people experiencing financial hardships.

The creation of a blog to share all of the stories created
- One public reading of the stories
- Putting into words the testimony of Joël Basile by Marie-Paule Grimaldi, published in book form planned for summer 2021

A series of performances in a public space will give voices to Exquisite Stories
+ Cultural enhancement and the reclamation of history by writing + Establishing critical writing workshops + Find ourselves, once again, among the ephemeral library of the Festival International de Littérature
TO MEET EACH OTHER, TO SHARE EACH OTHERS’ STORIES, CREATE MEETING SPACES AND SPACES FOR DIALOGUE TO MAKE THE PATHS AND THE IDENTITIES SHINE. THESE PROJECTS TAKE THE FORM OF MICRO-EVENTS AND MEETING SPACES IN PUBLIC SPACES, OFFERING CULTURAL, ARTISTIC OR PERFORMANCE ACTIVITIES IN CONTEXTS WHERE SOCIAL TIES ARE PARTICULARLY FRAGILE
EXÉKO À AMÉLIORÉ MA CRÉATIVITÉ
Social mapping project in collaboration with the artist, Tania Casaubon, who is looking to make visible the relationship with the territory and the experiences of citizens who frequent the Milton-Parc neighbourhood. Built principally with embroidery, this geographic map will have as purpose to make different voices heard, thus uniting them to build a new collective and inclusive narrative of the neighbourhood.

“REGARDLESS, THERE IS NO POINT TO SITTING DOWN, WE SHOULD ALWAYS DISCUSS WHILE STANDING UP, LIKE WE ARE DOING RIGHT NOW, THERE, YOU AND ME! THE GREEKS SAID THAT IT’S ALWAYS BETTER TO THINK WHILE STANDING UP BECAUSE IT MADE IT POSSIBLE TO CONNECT TO THE BEYOND AND TO HAVE MORE VIVID IDEAS. INSTEAD OF SITTING ON DISGUSTING FURNITURE...”

“IF I COULD, I WOULD IMPLEMENT A FREE, AND SAFE, TAXI SYSTEM FOR WOMEN. THERE WOULD BE A SQUAD OF BADASS WOMEN WHO WOULD DRIVE CARS WITH A SYMBOL ON IT EVERYWHERE IN THE CITY. ANY GIRL OR WOMAN WHO DOESN’T FEEL SAFE COULD TAKE IT WHENEVER SHE SEES IT.”

32 stories collected and put into words by the artist with the collaboration of 2 mediators

119 people took part in the résidences

10 events of collective creations

36 hours of workshops

1 embroidery made for the commemoration of 5 indigenous people deceased in 2020

1st of 3 residences and artistic meetings planned in Milton-Parc over three years, aiming to break down the prejudices and tensions between the different communities occupying Milton-Parc.
This project fosters different conversations between communities whose perceptions seem to oppose each other: people in situation of homelessness, newcomers and residents.

It allows us to connect individuals or cultures that don’t have the opportunity to talk or to listen to each other.

COMMUNITY PARTNERS AND MEETING SPOT
Louis-Frédette Centre • Maison des amis • Notre-Dame Campsite
2020

7 workshops allowed us to talk about:
+ the right to housing + the way poverty is seen in diverse countries +
the sudden judgements that we all have when meeting other people and the social influences that feed them

1 candle with a unique scent, the one from the Notre-Dame campsite, given as an act of gratitude to students by an attendant with numerous candles. The students wrote them a thank-you card in return

1 dialogue podcast between the members of Singa Québec and of the Maison des Amis (in summer 2021)

1 dialogue + 1 podcast between students of the Louis-Fréchette Centre and the temporary residents of the Notre-Dame campsite

10 workshops:
5 with Singa + 5 with the Maison des Amis

“IF YOU HAD ANY ADVICE TO GIVE TO YOUTH, WHAT WOULD IT BE?”

“WHY AREN’T WE HELPING PEOPLE INSTEAD OF JUDGING THEM?”

“WHAT IS YOUR VIEW OF THE WORLD DUE TO YOUR LIFESTYLE?”

“WHY DO THE MAJORITY OF PEOPLE LIKE JUDGING OTHERS?”

“ARE YOU HAPPY?”

Questions by the students of Louis-Fréchette asked anonymously to the residents of the Notre-Dame campsite
In one round of a series of three workshops, the attendants talked about self-representation, the diverse influences that form the culture of Québec, identities and unique histories. Through writing exercises and role-playing games, we deconstructed our own narratives to let ourselves be guided toward a critical introspection.

The attendants were in majority participants that work in organizations for newcomers. We were all questioning our own positionality.

“Bring a new wind into us, like the innocence of a child. Learn and live the moment and have the earnestness to appreciate something else.”

2020

1 partnership with the Table de concertation des organismes au service des personnes réfugiées et immigrantes (TCRI)

6 hours of online workshop

12 attendants

“EACH HUMAN BEING HAS A LIVING EXPERIENCE THAT DESERVES TO BE KNOWN. NO BORDERS FOR THOSE WHO KNOW THEIR HISTORY. WILL MY HISTORY INFLUENCE THE OTHERS’? CANADA IS THE GENERATION OF IMMIGRANTS WHO SHAPED IT. WHAT’S RIGHT, IS TO DO IT COLLECTIVELY, THAT’S WHAT’S IMPORTANT.”

Jazmin

“I’VE NEVER EXPERIENCED AN ONLINE WORKSHOP AS VIBRANT, ONE THAT REALLY MOVED ME SO MUCH. I WANTED TO CONTINUE TO SPECULATE AND TO QUESTION THE INFINITY.”

NEIGHBOURHOOD MUSEUMS

We all have a story that deserves to be told. Neighbourhood's museum has the objective to create intercultural and intergenerational bonds through personal stories shared around personal objects that could belong in a museum.

"MY NAME IS ROZA, I AM ALGERIAN AND I AM MARRIED. I STUDIED SOCIOLOGY IN ALGERIA. I HAVE BEEN IN CANADA SINCE OCTOBER 23RD, 2019. AT THE MOMENT, I’M FOLLOWING FRENCH COURSES. THIS NECKLACE IS PART OF OUR TRADITION. WE PUT IT ON DURING FESTIVE DAYS TO EXPRESS OUR JOY OF LIVING..."

... THIS NECKLACE HAS BEEN MADE BY HAND WITH TWO DIFFERENT MATERIALS: SILVER AND CORAL. IT’S ALSO VERY VERY VALUABLE FOR ME, BECAUSE IT’S THE FIRST GIFT THAT MY MOTHER GAVE ME WHEN I WAS EIGHT YEARS OLD. SHE GOT THIS JEWELRY FROM HER MOTHER, BEFORE GIVING IT TO ME. SO, WE CAN SAY THAT THIS NECKLACE WENT THROUGH THREE GENERATIONS AND THAT IT’S MY IDENTITY AND A PART OF MY PAST.

Roza, student at the Louis-Fréchette Centre

21 stories collected to date
+ online and offline workshops with the Louis-Fréchette Centre and with the Exeko team

9 Montreal neighbourhoods represented: Saint-Michel • Saint-Léonard • Montréal-Nord • Rosemont • Rivière-des-Prairies • Mercier-Hochelaga-Maisonneuve • Mile-End • Plateau-Mont-Royal • Centre-Sud

4 countries represented: Quebec • Iran • Mexico • Algeria (Kabylia)
Urban routes showcase a neighborhood through the eyes and voices of its less heard inhabitants. Through the use of various artistic mediums, mainly photography and audio recordings, this project offers a space of expression where participants associate with their territory and reveal all the beauty of its diversity.

“BETWEEN WHAT YOU SEE AND WHAT THE PHOTO DEVICE TAKES ... THERE’S A BIG DIFFERENCE, BUT IT REMAINS ALMOST INVISIBLE TO OTHERS.”

SUPPORT THE FIGHT FOR MORE SOCIAL JUSTICE, SHARE OUR RESOURCES, PUT OUR SKILLS IN COMMON, ANSWER TO THE NEEDS OF OUR PARTNERS AND SOCIAL ENVIRONMENTS.
“This tragedy occurs exactly one year after the submission of the report by the public inquiry Viens Commission whose mandate was to investigate the relationship between Indigenous people and the public services in Québec. One of the many reports resulting from the many commissions aimed at improving the living conditions of Indigenous people as well as their relationships with public services. There’s several hundred recommendations in total... Only four of the 142 calls to action from the Viens Commission report have been implemented since then. In concrete terms, within institutions, systemic racism is still present. The recommendations put in place are more often based on acknowledgement than on tangible measures. Meanwhile, who is accountable for the Indigenous people killed by police officers during welfare checks? Who is accountable for the actions and words used in hospitals? Who is accountable for the deaths of dozens of Indigenous people facing homelessness in Montréal this year, especially women? Firing a nurse who has made comments of monumental violence and racism is not an end that will bring the end of systemic racism. How many Facebook live streams will be needed for us to get angry enough and break the silence?

These facts prompt us to question ourselves on the power we have to change things individually and collectively. In what way do we contribute to this system? In the light of these reflections and the usual inaction observed in the face of these recommendations, Exeko is committed to no longer holding or participating in consultations that will be used specifically to draw portraits of oppressed populations, at least, until concrete actions are taken. Similarly, we commit ourselves to requiring municipalities and governments to instead consult the numerous reports that have already been written as well as the data, information and knowledge already present within the communities, environments and organizations concerned. Exeko is committed to responding only if the request comes from the impacted populations. We are aware of the harmful impact on these populations from the repetition of these initiatives and the inaction regarding the recommendations.

We want the reports, portraits and research carried out by the people involved to be considered and given priority. Therefore we are committed to contributing, as a priority, to the implementation of the recommendations mentioned in the Assembly of First Nations Quebec-Labrador (APNQ)’s action plan against racism and discrimination released [this year], which encourages us to join forces with the First Nations against racism and discrimination. We will listen to their voices rather than those of the government on this issue. We also invite you to inform yourself and read it.

All the writing in the world, all the letters of support, all the words and outrage will not erase the pain and sorrow felt by families, communities and nations who have lost loved ones in disturbing circumstances as a direct result of systemic racism, which too often translates into ordinary racism by individuals. Systemic racism will remain an indestructible wall as long as we are the bricks that bear the weight of it while we endure it.”

ANNICK CHARETTE

Today, we stand up as women, [as for the “women” which we are talking about (and which we are part of), they are cisgender, trans, or women refusing to identify as binary, in other words, women who, in a way or another, aren’t men].

We speak as women who are tainted by our stories as well as those from other women who have crossed our paths, co-exist among us, grew up with us and are part of the sadly ordinary statistics of sexual harassment and conjugal violence. We speak for all too many of us who would rather shut up rather than be humiliated once again by having their word being doubted by a system that acquires those like Gilbert Rozon.

Two days ago, the Justice has exonerated Gilbert Rozon for the second time since the beginning of the #MeToo movement.

When reading her judgement, Judge Mélanie Hébert pointed out that “the main belief, to ‘believe in the victim’, granted by the #MeToo movement, does not belong in criminal law, since it contradicts the presumption of innocence”.

She also added that “even though the court does not believe the factual contention of Mr. Rozon, it still casts a meaningful doubt [...] Due to the existence of this doubt [...] M. Rozon must be acquitted of his accusations.”

In a verdict of only a few words, in a verdict, Ms. Judge, arm of justice, and this reasonable doubt got the better of the victim’s words and of the courage it took her to [express in front of the world] this sinister story that has been haunting her for 40 years. They also got the better of the presumption of guilt of the abuser

How can the abuser be declared not guilty until proof of the contrary, while the victim is guilty of having lied unless there is proof of the contrary? How can a judicial system publicly admit that it does not believe in the factual contention of the abuser yet still acquit [them]? The violence of such a message is asphyxiating: we could eventually believe in you, but we can’t do anything for you. Or worse, we’ll do nothing for you.”
I AM YET ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF THE JURIDICAL LIMITATIONS IN TERMS OF SEXUAL VIOLENCE.
